New 5% Evidence; May Recall Gen. Vaughan

Tips Pouring In; Influence Racket Is Big

White House Used For Personal Gain

Washington, Sept. 3—(AP)—Two senate Republican investigating five percenters said today they expect Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan's recall for questioning on new evidence dug up.

Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, underwent a rigorous two-day examination by the investigating committee earlier this week. The hearings are in recess—probably for a month or so.

To Recall Vaughan

Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) told reporters that he feels sure Vaughan will be asked to take the spotlighted witness chair again, and Senator Mundt (R-SD) termed his reappearing "very probable."

Both based their statements on new leads being run down by committee investigators. They said the probe into the activities of the capital's five percenters, men obtaining government business for third parties for a fee, has just begun.

The committee is trying to learn the extent of any influence exerted by the five percenters on top government officials.

Influence Racket

Some entirely new cases are being opened up by tips pouring in on committee members, Mundt said. He forecast that before the hearings are closed "it will be demonstrated that the influence racket in Washington is greater than expected."

He also predicted that subsequent hearings will show other instances of "persons using White House contacts to advance their interests."

Vaughan in his testimony before the committee readily acknowledged that he had lent a helping hand to friends in their dealings with the government but he denied doing anything improper.

He said he had never sought, received or expected any fees or other remuneration for his favors.

Czechs In Tribute To Eduard Benes

Prague, Sept. 3—(AP)—Czechoslovakia's Communist-led government paid tribute to the memory of former President Eduard Benes today, the first aniversary of his death.

The anniversary passed without comment from the government-controlled morning press, but the official news agency said wreaths from Communist President Klement Gottwald and other leaders were placed on Benes' grave at Sezimovo Usti.

Many peasants were reported filing past Benes' grave.

The morning press, omitting reference to Benes, said memorials would be held for Dr. Antonin Borek, a ministerial secretary who died during the German occupation, and for V. Entner, a newspaper editor who died in the Nazi concentration camp at Dachau seven years ago.

Yugoslavs Cut Two Russian Trade Ties

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 3—(AP)—Yugoslavia yesterday severed two of the chief commercial ties binding her to Russia.

The government announced, through its official news agency, Tanjug, that joint Yugoslav-Russian civil aviation and Danube river shipping companies had been dissolved "on the proposal of" Yugoslavia.

This latest move in the cold war between the two Communist countries came amid reports that Russia and her Cominform allies had set up an anti-Tito underground in Yugoslavia.

Seven Die on Tiny Island From Storm

Miami, Fla., Sept. 3—(AP)—The small tropical storm which claimed seven lives on the tiny British island of Barbados apparently has spent its energy and flattened into nothing more serious than a strong easterly wind.

The San Juan, Puerto Rico, weather station late last night said the distrubance had lost any semblance of an "eye" and although it contained strong winds, had none of the characteristics of a regular tropical storm.

Tito and Stalin On the Outs for Long Time, Claim

Paris. Sept. 3—(AP)—Yugoslavia's Premier, Marshal Tito, has been on the outs with the Kremlin longer than anyone suspected, an American professor said yesterday.

Prof. Kirtley Mather, Harvard geologist, who lunched with Tito in Yugoslavia last week, said he asked his host if relations with Stalin were harmonious during Tito's Moscow visit in 1944.

"They were not," Mathers said Tito answered.

In 1944 Tito was leader of the Yugoslav partisans in the war against Germany and to all appearances had been hand-picked by Moscow for the job. He took over the country as prime minister following liberation in 1945.

The formal break between Tito and his erstwhile comrades came in June, 1948, when the Cominform blasted him for too great independence from Moscow.

Since that time the Rusisan-led bloc and Yugoslavia have engaged in a war of words which has kept the Balkans smoldering with war fears.

Mather said that from his conversation with Tito he gathered that the Yugoslav chieftain does not expect an armed Soviet attack, but is prepared for it if it comes.

He said that Tito would be swayed neither by Moscow nor by the western powers from pursuing whatever policy he believed best for his own country.

Mrs. Cory Hurt In Auto Crash

Mrs. Ruth Cory, 52, of 1208 Fargo avenue, Dixon, suffered chest injuries in an automobile accident which occurred at the intersection of East Chamberlin street and Jefferson avenue yesterday afternoon. She was an occupant of a Jeepster which was driven by her daughter, Mrs. Frances C. Warmolts, 33, of Oregon.

At the intersection, the Warmolts car was driving east on Chamberlin street when David C. Ruckert, 19, of the Dixon state hospital, driving a '27 coupe made a left turn off Jefferson avenue and the brakes of his car failed to hold.

Patrolman Glenn Camery who investigated the accident removed Mrs. Cory to the hospital and later to a physician's office where her injuries were treated and she was then taken to her home. Both cars were damaged slightly.

Nation's Fastest Planes Seek Honors at Cleveland

By JAMES J. STREBIG
Associated Press Aviation Reporter

Cleveland, Sept. 3—(AP)—Carrier-based jet pilots in the Atlantic and fliers in California watched the starter's flag today for a signal to dash for Cleveland and the 20th national air races.

Speed planes at Cleveland airport were set to take off, too, on the first day of the three-day event, and the weatherman promised good weather all around.

Speeds Of 700 MPH

Altogether, around 60 planes will participate in the races, with speeds ranging up to 700 miles per hour.

The first takeoffs were scheduled this morning at Rosamond dry lake, north of Los Angeles, where half a dozen fast ships were set for a race horse start in the 2,000-mile flight to Cleveland for the Bendix trophy and a total of $25,000 in prizes. They were to be followed shortly by air force F-84 Thunderjets in a one-stop flight.

The Bendix race scheduled takeoff time was 6:30 a. m. in California.

Navy jets were due to finish a dash from the carrier U.S.S. Midway—steaming off the coast 500 miles east of Cleveland—about the same time. Air National Guard jets will compete in a low-level swoop from Indianapolis tomorrow.

Closed Course Race

The first closed-course race scheduled at 9:30 a. m. brought into competition half a dozen midget planes in the first heat of a three-day Marathon for the Goodyear trophy and a share in $25,000 prize money. The field is made up of 10 of the 19 qualifiers in the unlimited class. The other nine qualifiers will fly tomorrow in the Tinnerman trophy race.

The three-day show reaches its climax in the Thompson trophy race on Monday. It will be run in two divisions, one for propellor planes with speeds around 400 miles an hour, and one for air force jet fighters, with speeds around 600 miles an hour.

Detroit Yields to Union; Buses Operate

Detroit, Sept. 3—(AP)—The buses and street cars were running as usual today after the city yielded to most all the demands of unionists who staged a quickie work stoppage.

A walkout of 2,000 maintenance workers yesterday at the department of street railway garages threatened to tie up municipal transportation.

DSR officials said it was a strike, but the repairmen said it was a demonstration.

The union had protested against the DSR's hiring of about 25-general auto repairmen" at $1.84 an hour. It contended the jobs should have gone to present employes in lower classifications.

Judge Rutledge Clings to Life

York, Me., Sept. 3—(AP)—Dangerously ill Supreme Court Justice Wiley B. Rutledge still clung to life today in York hospital.

The 55-year-old jurist, in a coma since noon yesterday following cerebral hemorrhage had a quiet night.

A hospital bulletin said "his condition remains the same—he is still gravely ill."

Justice Rutledge, regarded as a "liberal" member of the nation's highest court, entered the 22-bed hospital last Saturday. He became ill while vacationing at nearby Ogunquit, a summer resort in wells.

Mrs. Rutledge, Mary Lou and Jean Ann, and Neal and his wife have been at the hospital constantly since Rutledge suffered a relapse Wednesday.

Rutledge has been on the Supreme Court bench since 1943. He was the eighth and last appointee of President Roosevelt. He was elevated from the District of Columbia Circuit Court of Appeals.

Bulgaria Charges Greece Aggressive

Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 3—(AP)—Bulgaria today charged Greece with violating her territory and said she refused responsibility for what might follow.

A long statement issued by the government press department said a protest had been sent to United Nations headquarters in New York lising 25 aggressive acts committed by Greece against Bulgaria between Aug. 22 and Aug. 30.

These allegations included invasions of Bulgaria by units of the royal Greek army, flights by Greek planes over Bulgarian territory and searching of Bulgarian ships in the Aegean by Greek war ships.

Jackie Cooper Is Sued For Divorce

Los Angeles, Sept. 3—(AP)—Actress June Horne wants a divorce from Jackie Cooper, 27, one-time film juvenile player, claiming he has caused her "anguish, pain, humiliation and embarrassment."

The 30-year-old actress, in her suit filed yesterday, said she has "conducted herself with kindness and affection," but Cooper has treated her cruelly.

Uncle Sam to 'Move In' on 'L. A.' Mobsters

Los Angeles, Sept. 3—(AP)—The federal government is girding for an all-out offensive against Los Angeles gangsters.

U. S. Attorney James M. Carter gave warning to the underworld that he has asked for assignment of at least 50 treasury agents to move against mobsters by way of the income laws.

The federal prosecutor said treasury agents, if assigned here, will "go after millions of dollars" handled by hoodlums. Carter indicated that special attention will be paid to horse race bookmaking revenue.

Carter said yesterday that The Guarantee Finance Co., bookmaking set-up is an example of income tax matters that need immediate government attention.

Pay-Off Racket

Recently the governor's state crime commission agents said that Guarantee Finance Co., was the headquarters for a large bookmaking syndicate. The crime commission produced records at a public utilities commission hearing which the agents interpreted as showing payoffs in the thousands of dollars to law enforcement agencies.

Carter also mentioned gambler Mickey Cohen and his activities as a matter needing the attention of government income tax experts.

Check on Taxes

"The only solution to the gangster problem is to go into the income tax angle," said Carter. (This was the method used by the government in moving against the Al Capone gang in Chicago.)

"We need at least 100 men who are highly specialized intelligence unit operatives, but I am at this time recommending to the justice department that least 50 be assigned here promptly," Carter said. He said that even if no criminal cases were prosecuted "there "undoubtedly would be many civil cases and the government probably would collect millions of dollars in income taxes and penalties."

Traffic to Kill 280 Is Prediction

(By The Associated Press)

Millions of motorists headed for Labor Day outings today as the nation started the summer season's last extended holiday.

Early reports from across the country showed safety in travel. But the National Safety Council predicted a probable death toll of 280 in traffic accidents from last night to midnight Monday.

The first survey of violent deaths from 6 p. m. Friday showed 13 persons killed in traffic mishaps and one person drowned. New York reported three motor fatalities: Colorado and Oklahoma two each, and one each was reported in Idaho, Iowa, Minnesota, Ohio, Texas and West Virginia.

The 1948 Labor Day weekend was marred by 407 violent deaths, including 293 traffic fatalities; 60 drownings, and 54 persons killed in miscellaneous mishaps.

Two Die Trying To Land 'Flying Boxcar' in Marsh

Fairfield, Calif., Sept. 3 (AP)—A pilot and his co-pilot tried to land a crippled C-82 "Flying Boxcar" on a marsh and were killed late last night after six others had parachuted to safety.

The giant air force plane crashed in flames.

Two of the survivors were crewmen and four were passengers.

One of the crew members, T Sgt. Kermit R. Carlson, reported the accident to the Fairfield-Suisun air force base by telephone shortly after he reached the ground near Bird's landing.

He told officers at the air base he believed he was the last to jump and that the pilot and co-pilot remained with the ship.

Names of the two killed were not released.

All survivors were taken to the Fairfield Suisun air force base hospital for observation. There were no known injuries.

One badly burned body was found about 50 feet from parts of the wreckage.

Mysterious Mist Destroys Paint on Car, Eats Clothes

Tilghman, Md., Sept. 3—(AP)—Auto paint is eaten away. Holes are burned through clothes on the washline. Stone houses are discolored.

Complaints from residents of this Chesapeake Bay island led to an investigation today of a mysterious "mist" believed to be responsible for such phenomena.

There are several theories. One involves fumes from a fertilizer plant. Another, put forward by Dr. Lewis S. Welty, Talbot county medical examiner, believes water cabbages may be to blame. Dr. Welty explains his water cabbage theory thus:

When the big leaves of the plant rot, they give off a hydrogen sulphire fume. If enough hydrogen sulphide gets into the air and there is a heavy dew, the hydrogen sulphide may dissolve in the dewdrops and form sulphur dioxide. That in turn becomes sulphurous acid. The acid does the dirty work.

Maryland state police at nearby Easton said they had received a dozen complaints this week, most of them Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning.

One badly damaged car was taken to Baltimore for study by Dr. Henry C. Freimuth, state toxicologist. His findings were not available immediately.

Frenchman Tries Channel After a Champagne Party

Folkstone, England, Sept. 3—(AP)—Fernand De Moulin, who left a champagne party to plunge into the channel from a French beach last night, was sighted three miles from the English shore today.

Watchers on the Varne lightship saw him swimming strongly at 11 a. m., 13 hours after setting out.

The 34-year-old Belgian industrialist, started his swim at 10 p. m. last night.

Watching from the beach was the swimmer's wife Eva who gave him the gay send-off last night.

Fresh southwest winds swept up the English channel today and delayed Shirley May France's projected swim from France to England.

The air ministry reported the wind was blowing with a velocity of 15 miles an hour.

It has decided to plan special events to pay the cost of the plan. The decorations, of a permanent type, will be purchased from a Dixon firm.

Paul Robeson Sponsors Ask Court Action

DEWEY ORDERS POLICE IN

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 3—(AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey today ordered "all available state police" into the Peekskill area tomorrow to prevent disorder at what he called "pro-Communist meeting" at a Paul Robeson concert tomorrow night.

The governor said he ordered the extra troopers at the request of the Westchester county sheriff, Fred W. Roscoe, but added that he was holding the sheriff and district attorney "strictly accountable" for maintaining order.

Peekskill, N. Y., Sept. 3—(AP)—Sponsors of a scheduled Sunday concert by Paul Robeson today mapped court action to try to keep demonstrating veterans away from the scene of the performance.

At the same time, all available Westchester county police were alerted against a possible repetition of the fierce rioting that occurred when the Negro singer was to appear near here last week.

The rioting broke out when anti-Communist veteran groups staged a protest parade outside a picnic grounds in nearby Cortlandt, where Robeson was to sing. At least eight persons were injured.

In U. S. Court Appeal

Frederick Gottlieb, chairman of the county "law and order" committee, said his group will go into federal court today to seek an injunction against a planned protest parade at tomorrow's concert.

He said court papers, to be filed by Charles Rothenburg, a Mahopac, N. Y., attorney, will ask the court to order public officials to requite protesting groups to hold their parade somewhere removed from the concert site.

Meanwhile, 15 veterans groups planning a protest demonstration at tomorrow's concert, rejected a suggestion by District Attorney George Fanelli that they hold their parade elsewhere.

He proposed that the demonstration be held in Peekskill, instead of at the Old Hollow Golf Club grounds four miles north of here where the concert is scheduled.

The grounds are about a mile from the scene of last week's riot, and on the same road, Hillside avenue.

The veteran groups, after voting down Fanelli's suggestion, invited ex-servicemen from other states to join them in parading past the gates of the concert grounds.

Expect Big Turn-Out

They predicted 25,000 will join in the parade as a protest against Communism.

Robeson, identified with numerous leftist movements, has been the object of several such demonstrations.

His supporters predicted 15,000 persons will attend the concert.

River Street Opens After Some Repairs

East River street which has been closed to traffic for several months has been reopened. The street department has removed some of the brick paving and in the worst sections, applied an 18 in crushed stone fill which is later to be oiled. The reopening of the street will reduce the movement of trucks and other traffic over Second street which traffic had become the source of considerable complaint in the residential section.

While the present improvement and reopening of East River street is only a temporary relief, plans for a permanent improvement of the entire section are under consideration.

Biggest Airliner Takes Taxi Tests

Bristol, England, Sept. 3—(AP)—The 130-ton Brabazon I, biggest airliner in the world, moved under its own power for the first time today—in a series of taxiing runs.

Test Pilot Bill Pegg guided the monster up and down a mile and a half of runway at ten miles an hour five times while a team of nine technicians studied its 1,000 instrument dials.

Soon, perhaps early next week, Pegg hopes to take the experimental giant on its first flight.

Average Length of Life in the United States, 67 Years

New York, N. Y., Sept. 3—Average length of life in the United States is now about 67 years, or nearly double what it was at the time of the nation's founding, and 18 years more than at the beginning of this century. Only the Scandinavian countries, Australia, and New Zealand have as favorable an experience.

These are samplings from the great wealth of facts on longevity and its relations with sex, age, marital status, body build, occupation, family history, and medical record in "Length of Life, by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, chief of statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Dr Alfred J. Lotka, and Mortimer Spiegelman, the Metropolitan's assistant statistician.

In the book just published by the Ronald Press, New York, the authors trace and interpret the improvement in health and longevity from the earliest times to the present, with emphasis on the social and scientific influences which have brought about this progress

Many Factors

The increase in our longevity, the authors indicate was made possible not only by the advances in the medical and sanitary sciences but also by the rapid rise in our standard of living Though not so evident, improved working conditions, better and more varied food, and plenty of fresh air and sunlight around our homes have given extra years of life to our people.

The authors deal with the problems of forecasting expectation of life. They foresee a further increase of five years in the average length of life in America by 1975, but point out that the chances of surviving beyond the century mark are not expected to be much greater. One hundred years appears to be about the limit of the natural human life span.

The influence of heredity upon longevity is studied. One case is mentioned of a person whose six parents and grandparents lived to a total of 599 years, and who was himself more than 90. In their discussion of the inheritance of longevity the authors conclude that, although a tendency toward long life is inherited, the inheritance factor is not as important as advances in medicine and in standards of living.

Weight Important

Such factors as the relations of child mortality to age of parents, order of birth, pre and neonatal influences and the Rh factor are scrutinized In the discussion of body build a statistical and medical backing is supplied for the slimming diets so many persons try out periodically. Being greatly overweight, it is shown, seriously affects the expectation of life. Being markedly underweight is also a handicap, but not so bad a one.

After discussing some of the advances which have brought about the present long average lifetime in the United States, the authors turn their attention to the economic and social aspects of increasing longevity. With the population growing older, the pattern of family life is changing. As health measures are improved, more and more persons enter the years of old age in better physical condition. With continuing gains in medical and social science, the number of normally active years of life will be increased Instead, therefore, of becoming a burden on the younger working population for support and medical care the old may well extend their productivity way beyond the present retirement age of 65.

Senator's Request for an Army Plane Trip Gets 'NO'

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Sept. 3—(AP)—Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, a big man with a bald head, caused a lot of grins in Washington with the jolt he has just handed a bunch of senators

When Johnson, a businessman himself, took over the defense department last spring, he said he'd "knock heads together' if he had to, to make the armed forces work all right.

Since he has been in office, he has heard senators preaching the virtues of the free enterprise system and the need for economy in government spending Nobody has to tell Johnson about the free enterprise system. He's a great believer in it, himself, having made a lot of money under it.

He's quite a hand at economy, too, and when he hears senators preaching it he takes them literally, it seems Only recently he announced he was firing 135 000 civilian employes of the armed forces to save around $500,000,000

Cuts Expenses

The senate had wrecked $1 400 000,000 from the money the house voted to pay the expenses of the armed forces this next year They chopped $800,000,000 off the money for the air force.

Then Johnson got a letter from Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat and chairman of a subcommittee of the appropriations committee

Seems in his letter Thomas told Johnson about 11 members of his committee wanted to make an "official" inspection trip to Europe, and some wanted to go around the world, and please would he send them around in an air force plane.

(Since this was to be an "official" trip, it would be at government expense anyway, whether they went by air force plane or one of the airlines or by boat.)

No Airplane

Johnson wrote Thomas he was sorry but there was economy to worry about in the armed services, and it cost about $130 an hour to keep a plane in the air on such a trip, and please would they just go by commercial plane. In short, he said, no air force plane for the senators

Then he put in the little reminder about free enterprise " . . . I have felt that I could not justify placing the armed services in competition with commercial carriers . . . "

That's another way of saying that since the government is going to have to foot the travel bill for the senators anyway, let them spend it on regular airline planes which stay in business by carrying passengers

This must have been a shock to Thomas—the airforce has always jumped when congressmen wanted to make 'official" trips — for he said later 'I know senators will not be pleased."

Take Junkets

Every year when congress closes, or is near closing, as this one is, senators and representatives scamper off in all directions around the world by plane or boat

When they go—singly or in groups, as a committee—on "official" business, it's at government epense Which means that you, the taxpayer, pay for the ride, hotel, meals and so on.

Newsmen who cover congress year in and out estimate that 99 percent of all travel by congressmen and senators abroad is at government expense.

One veteran house member, who hasn't missed a trip abroad for years, predicted that this year around half the 435 house members will be out of the country by the end of the year.

One house committee sailed a week ago on the Queen Mary to study "population trends" in Europe. Other planed trips include:

One to study medical programs in Europe; another to study military morale on the continent; and other trips are scheduled for Puerto Rico, Japan, farm areas of Europe, Panama and Mexico

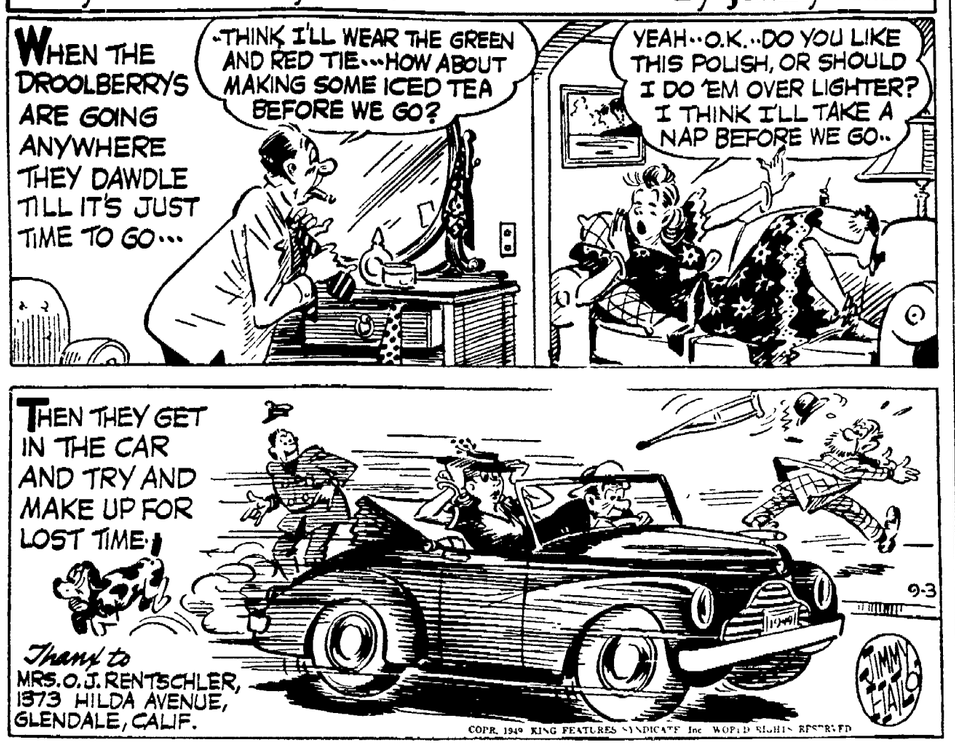
They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo



Hal Boyle Would Like to Borrow This Guest House

By HAL BOYLE

New York—(AP)—There will be no more peace in our time.

John D. Rockefeller 3rd has seen to that. He has carried his family's generous tradition of philanthropy right out the window.

John D. Sr, did wonders for world health with his millions.

John D. Jr, made a hopeful bid for world order by donating a fine site for the United Nations to build its echo chambers

And John D. three? What is he doing? Why, he's building a guest house for visiting relatives. There is no doubt he and his wife probably need it. They hardly have room in their east side apartment to entertain the 95 relatives who showed up for their wedding in 1932.

But young Rockefeller has put some 3,000 000 other New York families on the spot. Because—you know how relatives are—their hinterland kin are going to expect the same kind of treatment.

"Rockefeller built a house for his relatives," they'll sneer. "Why don't you? Getting too big for us, eh?"

Hard to Answer

And this will be difficult to answer, because most out-of-town visitors are sure that everybody here lives like Rockefeller—or Tommy Manville. Maybe they do, but it is often on a smaller scale.

The trouble with John D 3rd's adventure in family goodwill is that he built his guest house as if he r-e-a-l-l-y w-a-n-t-e-d all his obscure relatives to visit him.

It has a living room with a fireplace, three bedrooms and three baths. It has a sunlit patio complete with a goldfish pond and a live tree. Wonderful place for a city picnic.

And it would be a fine gesture of good will if young John D three would rent the joint out occasionally when his own folks weren't having a clambake. A lot of fellow citizens here could use it to show their relatives a hot time.

Cousin Squeegee

But, like me, they probably want to make some modifications I have in mind entertaining my fourth cousin, flap-eared Roscoe ("Squeegee") Boyle. Cousin Squeegee lives in Corntop, Iowa, and earned his nickname as a boy by winning a dime bet he could wash a department store window with one ear without using a ladder.

Squeegee still has the dime—also a wife, a pet parrot, and eight flap-eared children Everybody else in our family regards Squeegee as a worse plague than the locust, which appears only once in 17 years The Squeegee tribe is an annual blight.

It would be necessary, as I say, to fix up the Rockefeller guest house a bit for the Squeegees. First, I'd stop up the fireplace flue with concrete and get a good smudgy fire going Then I'd put a garter snake in every bureau drawer, and five famished rats in each kitchen cabinet.

A wild falcon would be perched on the tree to take care of the parrot, the pond would be full of snapping turtles instead of goldfish. I'd put two live grizzly bears in the master's bedroom to entertain Mr and Mrs Squeegee There'd be four wildcats in each of the other two bedrooms to play with Squeegee's eight little monsters

As I left I'd scatter tacks and cut glass on the living room rug, as the Squeegees usually arrive barefooted — "it feels so cool, Cousin Hal, and you know what they want these days for shoe leather."

When the Squeegees arrived, I'd usher them in, back out fast, lock the door and throw the key down the nearest manhole.

Lots of people have relatives like Squeegee. If young Rockefeller would rent out his guest house, he not only would go down as a benefactor of mankind—he'd make a profit.

Firing Red Twachers Hit by Youth Meeting

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 3—(AP)—The firing of Communists as teachers was condemned yesterday by the National Student Congress, meeting at the University of Illinois.

The congress adopted a resolution saying that "membership in any political, religious or other organization or adherence to any philsocophical, political, religious or other belief does not in itself constitute sufficient grounds for dismissal or failure to rehire educators."

At the same time, the group outlined a basic theory of academic freedom. It defined this in a resolution as "freedom of the scholar or institution of higher learning to search for truth and to discuss problems of science or art and to offer conclusions, whether through publication or instruction of students."

HOW TO BUY BUILD ☆ FINANCE MODERNIZE ☆ FURNISH IMPROVE ☆ YOUR HOME

Care Advised In Selecting Site for Home

The area and shape of a lot should be considered carefully by the prospective home owner who is selecting a site on which to build his house.

A lot can be too large as well as too small. If there is too much land, taking proper care of it will be difficult. Many large properties are unsightly simply because the owner has insufficient time to devote to his lawn and garden.

A lot which is too small, however, will restrict the location and orientation of the dwelling. Zoning ordinances in cities and towns often make a small lot undesirable because they limit the percentage of a lot's area which a house can cover.

Some zoning ordinances also restrict the relationship of a house to property lines. For example, building within 30 feet of the street might be prohibited, thus reducing the usefulness of a shallow lot.

High land costs are the only good reason for buying an extremely narrow lot. A wide lot makes placement of the house easier, adds privacy and permits more attractive landscaping.

Because low-lying land drains poorly, it generally makes a poor house site. Ground should always slope upwards slightly toward the house.

Soak Ground Thoroughly When Watering Grass

When watering the lawn, soak the ground to a depth of 4 inches or more. Light sprinkling is of little use. Water the lawn only when the lawn is extremely dry.

Do not water grass more than twice a week. If rainfall is normal, watering usually is unnecessary after the middle of September.

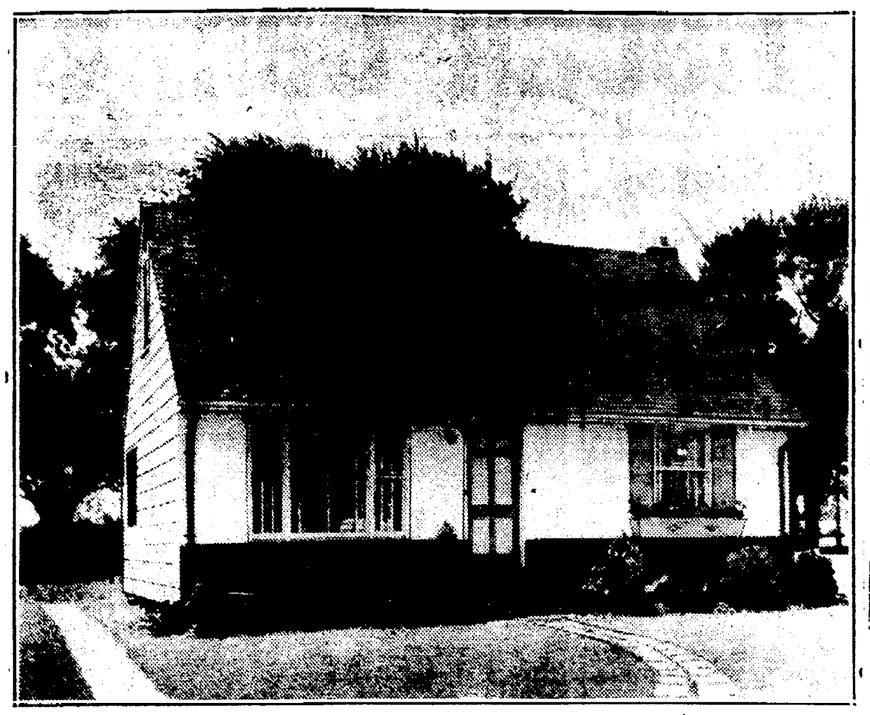
POISON IN COCKLEBURS

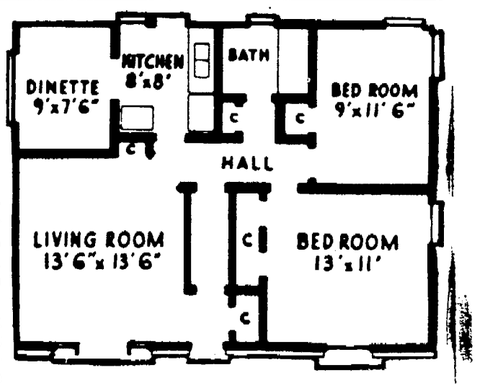
Cocklebur in early stages of growth contain a poison which can be fatal to pigs.

SOUR MILK BLEACHES

Cotton and linen can be bleached with sour milk.

Roof Overhang Shades Windows of Cape Cod Home





An interesting combination of modern and traditional architecture is seen in this attractive Cap Cod dwelling. A foot-wide overhanging eave across the front of the clapboard and brick house provides shelter for the center entrance and shades the 7' x 7' living-room window and the smaller one in the front bedroom. The architect gave particular attention to light and ventilation. The living-room window has an immovable center section 4' x 7' flanked by 1'8" double-hung windows which can be opened for ventilation. Two standard-sized double-hung windows at the corner of the rear bedroom help cross-ventilate the house. Still more light and air are admitted by the casement window group in the dinette.

The same thoughtful planning for comfort and maximum livability is found throughout the 24' x 34' house. Full-thick mineral wool insulation in walls and ceiling makes the house cool in summer and reduces the initial cost of the oil-fired, automatically-humidified warm-air heating system. With the mineral wool insulation, fuel costs will be lowered about one-third.

Free traffic flow results from locating a hall behind the stairway leading to the expansion attic. All rooms except the dinette open off this hall. Kitchen and dinette are separated by a 3-foot-high semi-partition with center passageway. A trellis above the partition extends to the ceiling and provides a place to display flowers or climbing vines.

The living-room, 13½ feet square, has five bookshelves recessed into one wall. An 8-foot storage closet with two doors for easy access is provided in the master bedroom.

Two future rooms can be added inexpensively in the unfinished attic because the builder extended the warm air heat ducts into the attic at time of construction. Roof rafters are joined by 8 collar-beams to give the house more strength and serve as a base for future ceiling finish.

Lee County 4-H Sponsors Fine Movie

On September 13, 14, and 15 the Lee County 4-H Federation will sponsor the motion picture, "The Green Promise," at the Amboy Theatre. This is one of the outstanding full length motion pictures produced this last year. It is not only entertaining but at the same time gives a better picture and a better understanding of 4-H club work.

The Lee County 4-H Federation is sponsoring this picture in an effort to raise funds for Camp Shaw-waw-nas-see. Camp Shaw-waw-nas-see is the beautiful 4-H camp located on Rock Creek in Kankakee County, at which 100 Lee County 4-H'ers enjoyed a very pleasant time this year. Tickets have been printed and have been sent to every 4-H club, both agricultural and home economic, in the county. Anyone wishing to see this motion picture should contact a 4-H member and get an advance sale ticket. Only advance sale tickets are of benefit to the Federation. Any tickets sold at the box office will not aid the 4-H federation financially. If a 4-H member does not have tickets on hand at the moment, he can secure them from his leader. If the leaders are out they can secure more tickets from the Home or Farm Bureau office

The effects of the two million members of the country's 4-H clubs keynote much of the drama of "The Green Promise" a Glen McCarthy production released by RKO. With its action and romance taking place on a midwestern farm the picture stars Marguerite Chapman, Walter Brennan, Robert Paige and little Natalie Wood. The work of the 4-H clubs forming the background for the adult action is interpreted by children, including, beside Natalie Wood, the talented F. Donaldson, Robert Ellis and Jean La Duke, the latter enacting a real life role from the members of the 4-H clubs

Chief A. C. Higby of the Dixon Fire Protection district met with the group and announced that two fine attractions, a complete rodeo and a thrill show have been booked by the firemen to appear at the Dixon Municipal Airport both afternoon and evening on Tuesday, Sept. 27.

Walter Knack, chairman of the float committee for the Thursday afternoon parade, reported that he has listed 60 floats with others still under consideration. He also announced that the Dixon Tavern Owners association had announced a $50 first prize to be awarded to the finest float entered in the parade.

Soil Meeting at The Cook School

Frank W. Scholl, chairman of the Lee County Soil Conservation district, announces that on Thursday, Sept. 8, at 8 p. m. D.S.T. a meeting will be held in Nelson township at the Cook school. This one and one-half hour meeting will include information on taking soil samples, information about the district, by a director, a colored movie, and a short discussion of neighborhood group action.

Either Bill Briggs, district conservationist, U. S. Soil Conservation Service, or James T. Somers, Acting Farm Adviser, will be on hand to conduct the meeting.

The movie, "My Country," made available through the courtesy of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company will be shown. All farmers and their families are invited to this meeting. Nelson township is one of the seven townships in the county recently taken into the soil conservation district. The purpose of this meeting is to acquaint the farmers with the soil conservation service.

Nine Minutes in the Life of a Fine Tuna Fisherman

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

This befuddled old world of ours has become so war-minded that it spends half its time talking about past conflict and the other half worrying over the next.

I fear me that we live too much in the past and future, and not enough in the present. Anyway your columnist is fed up with war and rumors of war. So let's talk about fishin', one of the really worth while things in life. I've angled in many countries for various kinds of fish, but I struck something new as an observer at the resent state of Maine tuna tournament held at Boothbay harbor, one of America's beauty spots. I'd like to tell you about that

Acme of Sport

Some call tuna fishin' with rod and reel the acme of piscatorial sport. Well, we won't argue that point, but it certainly is one of the most rugged—so much so that unless the fisherman is physically fit he runs the risk of bodily injury. A battle with say a 900 pound tuna is terrific, a fact which of course explains its fascination for the seeker after thrills. It's the purpose of this article to record an impression of such a fight with a big fish—one that got away.

I had the privilege of being for three days aboard the fast cruiser of one of America's widely known tuna fishermen—Walter McDonough, of Brielle, N. J.

Like a Tiger

McDonough is a huge, barrel-chested chap, about six feet two and weighing 245 pounds. I saw him battle a big tuna. He swung on his huge rod as he set the hook in what was estimated to be an 800 to 900 pound fish. As McDonough fought that fish I could think of nothing but a man tackling a Bengal tiger with his bare hands.

The tuna now had perhaps 300 yards of line run out and was in command of the situation. It was Mac's business to curb the fish's rushes and gain command himself. He had to work mighty fast because we were encircled by other boats and our theater of operation was relatively small.

It was a savage fight. Mac's big muscles swelled as he threw every ounce of his vast strength into the task of curbing the tuna's wild rushes and reeling it in inch by inch. His chair swung violently back and forth as his line lashed the water. No man could stand that long. About nine minues had passed and Mac had all but gained control over the huge fish when the tuna gave a sudden rush around the anchor line of a neighboring craft.

McDonough's line was severed. Mac sat and stared at the water for a long minute. Then he suddenly threw back his head and his big, boyish laugh boomed out.

Well, there you have nine minutes in the life of a tuna fisherman—and an observer.

FOR HIGH FLIGHT—A new disposable, constant-flow oxygen mask, to be used by airline passengers in high-altitude flights, is modeled by a pretty miss at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, O. Developed by the Air Materiel Command, the mask consists of a thin pliofilm bellows which expands and contracts as the wearer breathes in oxygen. Exhaled gasses escape through a porous paper facepiece. A plastic tube connects the mask to the plane's oxygen supply.

Ex-Army Sergeant Nabbed As a Betrayer to Country

New York, Sept. 3—(AP)—Handsome, 33-year-old John David Provoo—just discharged from eight years in the army—was in jail today on charges of betraying his country to Japan during wartime.

An ex-sergeant, Provoo allegedly volunteered his services to Japanese military commanders after his capture on Corregidor in 1942.

Federal authorities said he worked for the war-time enemy for three years as a propagandist, an inquisitor of American prisoners and in other roles.

Surprise To Him

His arrest yesterday on a treason warrant, just a few minutes after he had shed his army uniform, apparently surprised him.

"This is the first I've heard of this," he said.

An investigation of Provoo's case had been underway off-and-on ever since the war's end. The FBI launched a new inquiry a year ago.

The tall dark-haired Provoo, a native of California and a one-time student or Oriental philosophy, allegedly worked with "Tokyo Rose" in broadcasting Japanese propaganda to U. S. troops.

At the time Corregidor fell to Japan, he allegedly changed from his U. S. army uniform to the robes of a Buddhist priest, hoping by this means to curry favor of the Japanese.

Provoo was arraigned yesterday before U. S. Commissioner Edward W. McDonald.

U. S. Attorney John F. X. McGohey, and his chief assistant, Irving H. Saypol, gave this account of the case:

Before the war, Provoo worked in the Federal Reserve bank in San Francisco, where he had a good record. He made one or more trips to Japan, ostensibly to study the Japanese language and the Buddhist religion.

Used As Guard

He enterd the army in May, 1941. Sent to the Philippines, he was on Corregidor when the "rock" fell to Japan in 1942, marking a major American defeat in that stage of the war.

He was used by the Japanese to guard other prisoners, and to aid in questioning them, "among other things," Saypol said. The attorney did not elaborate.

After the Philippines fell, he was shipped to Japan, where he allegedly did his propaganda work, and was associated with "Tokyo Rose"—Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino.

Contrasting the two cases, McGohey said:

"Tokyo Rose was used for propaganda purposes, while this fellow is charged with actively aiding the Japanese forces to assist them in the occupation of Corregidor."

'Sad Sack' Chapter Is Given a Charter

Word was received here today from Carroll Yeast, district commander for the AmVets that a 'Sad Sack' chapter of the organization was approved at the Des Moines convention of the AmVets Friday. AmVet posts at Dixon, Amboy and Franklin Grove made application for the chapter. It will be a 'Sad Sack' unit of the three towns.

The 'Sad Sacks' is a fun outfit of the AmVets along the lines of the Legion "Forty and Eight."

Challenges Bell Figures

Chicago, Sept. 3—(AP)—An Illinois Commerce Commision attorney has challenged the reliability of studies made by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company to back up its request for a rate increase.

Illinois Bell seeks a permanent boost of $34 100,000 a year.

ICC Attorney William R. Ming yesterday claimed in hearings before two ICC examiners that the company's estimates on depreciation were not based solely on actual studies. He said they were drawn from a combination of real studies and "conclusions" by experienced employes.

John Turner, general staff engineer and head engineer in charge of depreciation and reconstruction for the phone company has estimated the annual depreciation of bell equipment at $19,000,000.

Under cross-examination by Ming, Turner testified yesterday that 85 per cent of Illinois Bell's reproduction costs were based on the charge made to it by Western Electric. He said the remainder came from labor costs.

Turner said Western Electric sold Bell such items as telephone poles and cable as well as eqiupment it actually manufactured.

Two ICC examiners, William E. Helander and Daniel C. Wood are hearing arguments before reporting to the commission, which must reach a decision before Oct. 10.

Last spring the ICC permitted the phone company to boost its rates until Oct. 10 at the rate of $7,600,000 yearly.

NAVY PLANE COMBINES JETS AND PROPS—This is the Navy's new patrol plane, the Martin P4M-1 Mercator, first shown to the public at the Cleveland Air Races. The aircraft has four engines but looks like a twin-engine model. Two standard gasoline engines are used for normal flight and the two jet engines, housed in the same nacelles, are used for extra bursts of speed. The Mercator is capable of speeds over 300 miles per hour and carries a load of 80,000 pounds.

Woman Is Named 'Sad Sacks' Head At AmVet Confab

Des Moines, Sept. 3—(AP)—A woman is the new national commander of the Sad Sacks—AmVet fun organization.

Delegates to the "Sad Sacks' convention broke tradition yesterday in electing Mrs. Eva E Manchester of Washington, D. C.

She is the only woman to head a veterans' organization fun group. Her title is "Saddest Sack."

Chosen 'Almost Saddest Sack." or vice commander, was Vinal S Smith of Champaign, Ill.

The "Sad Sacks," burlap bags draped over their shoulders and colorful grandfather's night caps on their heads, conducted an initiation of new members on a downtown street last night.

The "Sad Sacks" are meeting in connection with the AmVets fifth national convention.

Chicago Gets Big Ice Show For Nine Days

Chicagoans will get their first view of Holiday on Ice, a fresh, new ice revue that will have its 1950 edition in the International Amphitheatre starting September 27 for nine days through October 5.

This company, making its first appearance in Chicago, is unique in that it carries its own refrigeration system and will build an ice stage 80 by 120 feet in the Amphitheatre. The troup has performed in tropical Mexico.

Blends Talent

The revue features no individual, show officials point out, but blends the talent of 115 skaters into an all-star cast.

A number of Chicago skaters appear in Holiday. The show has Leo Freisinger, Chicago's Olympic speed skater. His wife, Mae, is a member of the chorus, and their six-year old daughter, Joan, has a number in the show.

Paul Summey who wrote the musical score and Carmen Nappo, conductor, are both Chicagoans.

Star Names

The names of Bobby Blake, Henry Lie, Michael Meehan and Susan and Tommy LaVonne are well-known in Chicago where they have performed in other ice shows.

Other well-knowns appearing are Dorothy Goos and Murray Galbraith, both figure skating medalists; Holly and Day, Phil Hiser, Ted Meza and Joe Shillen, all ice comedians; Kay Ferrehh, juggler, and Karen Blake, adagio teammate of Bobby Blake. George D. Tyson produced the show.

All seats are reserved at $3.00; $2.50, $2.00 and $1.50, tax included. A few choice seats in boxes are available at $3.60. Mail orders are now being filled at the International Amphitheatre, 42nd and Halsted. The show will have matinees Saturday and Sunday during the run.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The only hope of avoiding war is to accept Christianity as a way of life. not only in our private affairs, but in all public and international contacts.—Canon Sheppard.

On Labor Day, Let's Remember This!

Labor Day is the moment of the year when our politicians remind the workman that he is the backbone of the nation and recite for him the long list of rights and privileges to which he is heir.

We prefer to talk about the opposite face of those rights and privileges—the worker's duties and responsibilities.

There is no question that organized labor has achieved a fair measure of maturity since the first wild days of its new-found strength in the depression 1930's. But its leaders still shout too much of rights and not enough of duties and its rank and file is still too insistent in exercising its privileges and insufficiently concerned about its responsibilities.

Labor wants a rising floor under wages, but no ceiling. It wants full protection in its right to strike but acts as if it should be exempt from penalty when people are hurt or property is damaged while a strike is on. It wants a freedom for itself that it is unwilling to accord to others.

Admittedly, labor is not alone in this stress on getting instead of giving. The farmers too often have exhibited a similar attitude. And for a long span in U. S. history, businessmen behaved in the same fashion. Government and the greater strength of rival groups curbed their more irresponsible uses of freedom, but many businessmen still resent any checkrein on their activities.

This one-sided, immature approach cannot be condoned in any group. But today it just happens to be labor's turn to be lectured.

So we call upon workingmen to give more attention to the two-sidedness of life, to measure their role in society fairly in relation to other groups, to recognize that government as a referee must balance labor's needs and rights against the welfare of farmers and businessmen and the whole public.

Too many labor leaders have fallen into the habit of identifying themselves with all humanity and thus labeling criticism as an attack upon "people" in the large.

They would do better to urge upon their men a responsibility to act under the same laws that govern others; to accept a role in society equal to their numbers, their ability and their character, rather than to try to be the whole show; and to develop a new pride of workmanship to replace that which vanished when the minutely subdivided tasks of mass production pushed the proud craftsman off the scene.

Workingmen with this sort of attitude would greatly enhance labor's stature and enrich their contribution to American living.

Lesson Hand on Bidding

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	?	Pass

3

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Today's bridge hand came up at the Mayfair Bridge Club and top score on it was won by John McCormick, who is now living in New York.

Everybody agreed that South's first bid should be one heart. West should not double. A double at this point would be an informative double, asking his partner to bid, and West would be happy to have his opponents play the hand at hearts. Therefore, he should pass.

McCormick bid one spade, as did every other North player in the room. There are some players who would like to bid two spades, but holding two six-card suits, North should realize that his partner may have a similar holding, in which case there is absolutely no fit. Therefore, one spade is the correct bid. East should pass. South should bid two clubs.

Now the question is, what should North do? Many players will say that North should bid two diamonds. If he does, South will then bid three clubs. Now North will bid three diamonds or three spades, and South will take the contract to game in spades. Due to the fact that North has bid diamonds, East will not open a diamond. Probably the singleton heart will be opened, and the contract quickly defeated.

Over the two club bid, McCormick at his table signed the hand off with a two spade bid. He said, "I have a rule on these freak hands—lost as little as possible." South passed and the hand was played at two spades.

East opened the king of diamonds and McCormick proceeded to make four spades. He was not disappointed as he received top score, because those who had bid four spades were defeated.

Q—How did the Duke of Wellington come to be called "the Iron Duke"?

A—It is said that this nickname was originally given to the Duke of Wellington, an iron steam-vessel that plied between Liverpool and Dublin. The expression, however, was so well suited to the old soldier, it was applied to him also.

* * *

Q—Who was the Man With the Iron Mask?

A—A mysterious French prisoner of state, whose identity never has been satisfactorily explained. While traveling from prison to prison he wore a mask of black velvet, not iron, which he was forbidden to uncover on pain of instant death.

* * *

Q—When did the theft of a diamond necklace threaten to overturn the throne of France?

A—The necklace, valued at $320,000 was stolen by an adventuress. The Queen, Marie Antoinette, had no knowledge of the plot, but was falsely accused by the populace of Paris. Later, on her way to the guillotine, she was taunted with the accusation by the mobs.

* * *

Q—Who is referred to as "Harry of the West"?

A—No, it's not Harry Truman. The sobriquet was conferred upon Henry Clay, the American statesman, who for many years represented Kentucky in the United States Senate.

* * *

Q—Who is the supreme governor of the Church of England?

A—It is the King of England, now George VI. He possesses the right to appoint to the vacant archbishoprics and bishoprics.

Navy Undersecretary Kimball Ribbed Out of Golf Game After Phone Call

Washington— (NEA) —Navy Undersecretary Dan Kimball was playing golf on the 13th hole—farthest away from the clubhouse—when he was called to the phone by his office. The message was that his own assistant, Cedric Worth, had been revealed as the author of the unsigned letter that started the B-36 investigation. Kimball walked back on the course and relayed the news to his partners in a threesome—Army Secretary Gordon Gray and Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg. Up to the time he got the phone call, Secretary Kimball had been shooting good golf, with a 46 on the first nine and only one over par to the 13th hole. But when he came back to finish the round, his partners started ribbing him so mercilessly about Worth, he says, that it upset his game. So he threw in his towel and walked back to the showers. Secretary Gray and General Vandenberg finished.

'Is General Vaughan There?'

A government employe who had been away on vacation and had not been following the news came back to town and inserted a want-ad in one of the Washington papers, offering to sell his deep-freeze unit. The paper had barely hit the streets when the practical jokers started calling. By the end of the day his frantic wife had 300 phone calls, and more than 200 of them by actual count, opened with statements like, "Let me talk to General Vaughan, please," or "Is General Vaughan there?" Nobody wanted to buy. So the man cancelled his ad after the first insertion and decided to keep his deep freeze for a couple of months, till people forgot.

Truly an International Soldier

American observers at Fontainebleu, France, report that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, now chairman of the Brussels Treaty countries' Commander in Chiefs' Committee, has stopped flying the British flag on his staff car. The reason given is that "Monty" now considers himself an international soldier—not a Britisher. He is reported to feel that all the other Western European Union commanders should follow the same course.

Europe to the Europeans

While some members of Congress think that an American general should be made commander in chief in Europe so as to keep control over North Atlantic Pact military assistance, U. S. defense officials are shying away from it. They reason that Europe must organize for its own defense. If an American is placed in command. then it is felt the Europeans would want to dump the whole problem on the United States, for full responsibility, and do nothing themselves.

Problems in a Nutshell

American-British financial negotiations in Washington boil down to this: The British want the United States to reduce tariffs, simplify customs regulations, buy more British goods, increase the raw materials stockpile program, cut down synthetic rubber production so as to buy more raw rubber, and provide more capital for investment in the United Kingdom. In return, the U. S. wants the U. K. to cut down imports, increase production of exports, reduce costs of production, work harder, and if necessary reduce their standard of living so as to earn more dollars and cut down demands for greater financial assistance.

Wants No Part in China Aid

If congress passes a Military Assistance Program with a big hunk of money specifically earmarked for China, look for Secretary of State Dean Acheson to resign. Further military aid for China was decisively defeated in the house. A few senators have been advocating 200, 100 or 75 million dollars more for China, taking it away from aid now earmarked for Europe. State Department has indicated clearly it thinks buying further arms for Nationalist China would be wasted money. The claim is made that U. S. has already spent just as much as the Nationalist government in fighting communism, and got nothing for it. If more aid is ordered by congress another secretary of state will probably have to be appointed to administer the program.

Buchenwald Bell on the Spot

Testimony of U. S. citizens for a new German trial of Ilse Koch—belle of the Buchenwald concentration camp—is now being taken at Fort Jay, N. Y. Three German court officials have been brought to this country with American Military Government sanction, to take depositions.

They are Judge Ernest Jaggomost of the German district courts, Special Prosecutor Johann Ilkow and Defense Counsel Alfred Seidl, who served as defense counsel for Rudolf Hess and Hans Franck at the Nuremberg trials.

Frau Koch was originally sentenced to death by U. S. war crimes courts. Her sentence was reduced to life imprisonment when it was found she was pregnant. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, on review, reduced the sentence to four years. Commutation of sentence was criticized in congress, and the Army promised to help the Germans in their retrial for her crimes against German citizens.

The German court officials will return immediately, so as to complete the trial before Oct. 18, when Frau Koch's four-year sentence ends. U. S. witnesses were rounded up by an organization known as "American Association of Former Inmates of Concentration Camps and Other Victims of Nazi Persecution."

★ IN HOLLYWOOD ★

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

Hollywood—Six years ago I wrote a column titled, "After Television What?"

It seems more timely now than ever. So here it is again:

"Science is ma-aa-ar-vellous," the young lady remarked, "ain't it? I mean, the things they can do with that stuff. What'll they think of next? Now you take my cousin, The quietest little fella you ever saw. You wouldn't think he knew anything.

"But is he brilliant! Honestly. Homer simply makes my head swim.

"There I was the other day, in his laboratory. He shows me this new invention of his. He says, 'How'd you like to see the boy friend?' I says, 'Sure.' So what do you think?

"He turns a couple of little knobs, and, bingo, there's Joe standing right beside me."

"Television?" I asked politely.

"Television?—Naw. That's old stuff. Homer's got something you have to see to believe. He says a couple of other scientists are working on the same thing and he's trying to get a patent before they do. No kidding, it's just a question of time."

"What is?" I asked.

"Look," the young lady explained. "First they invent the telephone to send the human voice and everybody thinks it's wonderful. Then they send the human voice without wires. That's radio. They call it the miracle of the age.

LATEST AND GREATEST

"This guy Edison has invented the movies. So they combine the two and what do they get? Television. They can send talking pictures any place they want to, with the speed of light. Civilization thinks it's really got something. But wait. Now comes my cousin Homer.

"He doesn't send just pictures and voices—he sends people."

"Real people?" I repeated.

"Yeah. He calls it Telesubstantiation. It means something about sending real substance, flesh and blood. How he does it, don't ask me. But I tell you it's just a question of time till there's a Telesubstantiation set in every home."

"Now look here," I said. "How can your cousin Homer send real people?"

"I told you got to see it to believe it," the young lady said. "All I know is that it has something to do with the atom. First Homer breaks you down. Then he sends you out in atom form—on the beam, you understand, and then the receiving set picks you up, reassembles you, and puts you wherever Homer wants you to be.

"It's something like they do with words on the teletype—break 'em down into electrical impulses, send 'em out, and then reassemble 'em into words again. Only Homer don't use wires. Ain't it wonderful?"

"But," I objected, "what will that do to the movies?"

"Oh, the movies'll be old-fashioned. Like television. If you want to see Robert Taylor, they'll send you Robert Taylor in person."

"But what'll he have to say about that?"

"Well, they pay him, don't they? It'll be all in his day's work."

"But the exhibitors," I protested. "It will ruin theaters."

ONLY ONE AT A TIME?

"Not right away," she said. "You see Homer's only got it so they can just send Robert Taylor out once at a time. So if the masses are going to get the most out of him, he'll have to be sent to theaters, where a lot of people can see him—and even get his autograph. But Homer's working on an improved model now. Pretty soon he'll be able to send out thousands of Robert Taylors, by just duplicating the atoms in mass production."

"This," I said weakly, "is terrible."

"This," the lady said, 'is progress. And you haven't heard the half of it. Why have them send Robert Taylor to you, when they can just as easy send you to Robert Taylor?"

'Wait a minute," I said. "What kind of talk is that?"

"Listen, instead of going to a movie theater, you simply go down to the Telesubstantiation station and get telesubstantia-casted to Hollywood. Then you can see all the stars instead of just Robert Taylor. You're in Hollywood. You can even eat in the Brown Derby."

"But the railroads. What'll become of them. And the airplanes. And the hotels and the . . ."

"Yeah," the little lady smiled. "Ain't it progressive?"

Common Mental Disease Causes Split Personality

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

A rather common mental disease goes under the tongue-twisting names of schizophrenia or dementia praecox. This disorder is responsible for a great deal of anti-social behavior: in many cases persons ill with this disease require institutional care

A "splitting" of the personality is the most characteristic feature. The afflicted individual may show thoroughly normal behavior in some respects and yet be completely abnormal in others.

The first prominent early symptom is likely to be a change in the outlook of the victim. Sometimes a patient will show an unusual amount of suspicions. Dear friends or relatives may be unjustly suspected of persecution. Quite often the first signs consist of disorderliness and lack of cleanliness

Judgment is often impaired The patients frequently complain of hearing or seeing strange objects which are not there. Peculiar qualities to the thinking arise. The personality is likely to become gradually altered.

CAUSES DIFFICULT TO FIND

The cause of schizophrenia is not known. Heredity probably plays some part. It has been stated that more than half of those with schizophrenia have some family history of mental illness

Of the modern treatments available, the various shock methods seem to be the most promising. Shock treatment may have to be repeated a good many times and, of course, must be given under the direction of thoroughly qualified specialists It does not help in all cases, but it certainly offers hope for many who could not have been helped 30 years ago.

Note: Dr. Jordan is unable to answer individual questions from readers However, each day he will answer one of the most frequently asked questions in his column.

HOW TO PLAY CANASTA 6:

Use Two Decks and Four Jokers

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

The laws of four-handed Canasta call for two regular decks of 52 cards each, plus four jokers.

In cutting for partners and seats, the ace ranks high and the deuce low. If a player draws a joker, he puts it to one side and draws another card.

The player on the right of the dealer shuffles, but the dealer also may shuffle the pack. The player on the right of the dealer must cut the cards. Tables are arranged as in bridge, by selection of partners or by cutting for partners.

The cards are dealt to each layer one at a time. After each layer has received 11 cards, the deck is placed on the table preferably in a box or tray, and becomes the stock pile. The top card of the stock pile is turned over and placed in another box or tray, and this pile is referred to as the pack, or discard pile.

* * *

If the up-card is a joker, deuce or red trey, it is removed from the box or tray and slid under the edge of the box or tray so that it is visible to all players, and again the top card of the stock pile is turned face up and put in the other box or tray.

If another joker, deuce or red trey is turned up, the next card from the stock pile is turned up to cover it, and this process is continued until some card other than a joker, deuce or red trey is turned up.

The joker, deuce or red trey that has been slid under the edge of the box containing the pack signifies that the pack is frozen.

The ordinary rules applying to bridge and other card games for dealing hold true in Canasta. After the deal has been completed, play is ready to start.

The play consists of three parts. one, the draw; two, the meld (optional); three, the discard.

* * *

When it is a player's first turn to play, the first thing he must do is to remove the red treys from his hand and place them face up on the table. He is entitled to another card from the stock pile for each red trey he puts on the table.

If one of the cards he draws from the stock pile is a red trey, he must put that on the table and draw another card, so that at the start of the play he has 11 cards in his hand without any red treys.

The player at the left of the dealer begins the play by drawing the top card of the stock pile or the up-card. If the up-card of the pack is a black trey, even though you have two more black treys in your hand, you are required to draw from the stock pile.

MONDAY: More on four-handed play.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Are Okay; How About Their Friends?

A psychology professor at the University of California at Los Angeles is amazed over the results of a recent test he gave his students, which brought to light the fact that the students thought of themselves as "average" but rated other students as "maladjusted."

Well, if he tries the same type test on Mr. and Mrs. America he'll probably discover that most of them harbor a whole set of similar convictions.

Mr. and Mrs. America are firmly convinced they spend their income wisely. But just get 'em started on their friends and neighbors. They're always making mistakes, and why they paid so much for such-and-such Mr. and Mrs. America will never be able to understand.

Mr. and Mrs. A. also think they're pretty happy. But they aren't so sure about their friends. They can't figure out why some of them married each other in the first place. And they can't figure out how the others put up with each other. And when they hear that the Joneses are getting a divorce they "aren't a bit surprised."

"OUR KIDS WERE BROUGHT UP RIGHT!"

And take their kids. Mr. and Mrs. A. think they've done a pretty good job of bringing up their own. But they could sure tell the neighbors on both the right and left and across the street a thing or two. When they start a sentence beginning "What THAT kid needs" you can be sure THAT kid belongs to somebody else.

And so it goes. The college student who thinks he's average but is convinced the other students in the class are maladjusted for one reason or another isn't any funnier than the rest of us.

We're all sure that we're doing the best we can—and always wondering why the other fellow can't see the mistakes he's making.

But at least it gives us something to talk about.

Emergency Landing by Big Plane

St. Louis, Sept. 3—(AP)—An Eastern Airlines transport carrying 23 persons made an emergency landing last night that proved uneventful.

The instrument panel indicated the landing gear of the two-engine plane was not in a safe condition for landing when the pilot prepared for a scheduled stop at Evansville, Ind. The transport was en route from Atlanta to St. Louis.

"I went back in the plane and explained to the passengers we were having landing gear trouble," said Capt. O. E. Taylor of Atlanta, Ga., the pilot. "I told them no one would get hurt unless they got panicky.

"They took it very well. We flew around the airport there about 20 minutes and buzzed the control tower so they could put a light on us. They said the landing gear looked as if it was down. But I decided to come on to St. Louis, which has better facilities in case of a fire."

With three navy crash trucks and an ambulance standing by, the airliner came in for a safe landing at the municipal airport at 9:15 p. m.

Fearing the landing gear might collapse, Taylor shut off all his electrical equipment a moment before landing to avoid a possible fire. The landing gear functioned perfectly and an examination later showed the trouble to be in the instrument panel.

"There was no trouble among the passengers," Taylor said. "They were all joking about it after we landed."

Dixon Beautiful

The Dixon Beautiful committee of the Woman's club feels that Dixon is very fortunate to have so much natural beauty close at hand. Those wishing to spend the last holiday week-end of the summer taking scenic drives may do so without risking heavy traffic for long distances. Nowhere in the midwest is there a river drive equal to that between Dixon and Rockford.

* * *

The early history of Northern Illinois centered around Rock river because of the necessity for establishing crossings and because Blackhawk and his warriors made their last stand along the banks of the river. Travellers came through Dixon from Peoria to Galena to the lead mines and from Chicago to Dixon and thence southward to the tri-cities.

* * *

As early as 1836 the town of Oregon was mentioned in the New York Star by a traveller—"The bluff which follows the river until it reaches the city leaves and falls back for a mile, forming a half-circle, and meets it again just below in picturesque grandeur. The situation of Oregon itself has forcibly reminded me of Palermo, the capital of Sicily, surrounded on the land by a chain of mountains forming a complete ampitheatre which has been poetically called the "Conco L'Ora" of "The Golden Shell."

* * *

In 1841 William Cullen Bryant, the noted poet visited this part of the country. He wrote in part, "I have just returned from an excursion to Rock river, one of the most beautiful of our western streams. It flows through high prairies. The banks on either side are high and bold; sometimes they are perpendicular precipices, the bases of which stand in running water. At the foot of the bluffs break forth copious springs. In a drive which I took up the left bank of the river, I saw three of these: the first, the spring which supplies the town of Dixon with water."

* * *

Rock river has two branches as its source in Wisconsin—one comes from the four lakes around Madison and the other, which is usually considered the main source has its head waters in Fond du Lac county a few miles southeast of Lake Winnebago in Wisconsin.

* * *

It rises at 1,000 feet and descends between one and two feet per mile until it reaches the Mississippi at Rock Island about 300 miles distance. Almost exactly half of this distance is in Wisconsin and half in Illinois.

* * *

Navigation at the present time is limited to pleasure craft and fishing and clamming boats. However, there was a period about 1840 when a number of cargo boats came as far north as Dixon and even up to Rockford. That was before roads and railroads changed the picture of transportation. It was then that a group of men organized for the purpose of building a canal so that Great Lakes shipping might go from Milwaukee to the Mississippi via Rock river but they lacked money to do more than merely start the project.

* * *

Now it is known as one of the most scenic rivers in this part of the country especially from Dixon north beyond Byron. As you think back over your travels you realize in how few cases a highway follows the river for so far and you realize that this area is doubly blessed: both in having the scenery and in having it available to everyone.

* * *

The highway department has taken full advantage of this situation and has located ten picnic areas between Dixon and Rockford. This, too, is seldom equalled in other parts of the United States. This whole highway district which comprises the ten counties in this northwestern corner of Illinois maintains 33 such areas along the roadways. As you travel in other states and districts you realize how unusual this is.

* * *

As you go between Dixon and Oregon be sure to stop and climb Castle Rock—the view in both directions there at the bend of the river is breath-taking. Also notice the large quarry a mile or two farther up the river where the glass factory near Oregon is getting St. Peter sandstone for its glass making. This particular sandstone is some of the most pure found anywhere in the United States and it is so formed that it breaks apart easily and is readily processed. Also there is the new Lowden Memorial park with its famous Indian statue at Oregon.

* * *

If you travel in your armchair with a good book, the Dixon Public Library has a number of varied and very readable books on Rock River and surrounding territory. You will probably agree with Margaret Fuller, the poet, who said about Rock river valley, "The aspect of the country was to me enchanting beyond any I have ever seen, from its fullness of expression, its boldness and impassioned sweetness. Here the flood of emotion has passed over and marked everywhere its sweetness by a smile."

DARK JUMPERS FOR

New York — (NEA)—Mothers are promised a rosier outlook on blue Mondays and little girls snappier-looking school clothes by dark jumper dresses.

Because they can dodge soil, need only a fresh blouse for daily sprucing up, and are as smartly styled as the next dress, dark jumpers are answers to mothers' cries for school clothes that keep the laundry pile down to decent size.

Albeit dark, there's nothing somber about the jumper girl's dress. Designed for the sized 7-to-10 pig-tailed miss, dark jumpers are dark red, dark green or winter navy. Any of these lively but dirt-defying colors can take a change of white blouses and make a jumper girl look as freshly turned out as a starched-up kindergartner.

For the crisp look of her jumper, thanks go to new rayon failles and rayon gabardines. Designers' response to the crisp luster of faille, to the smooth worsted finish of rayon gabardine results in good taloring and smart detail. Examples of both are seen in sweetheart necklines, set-in midriff bands, pouchy pockets and contrasting braid trim, which, in one instance, is used to band a dress to give it white scalloped detail above and below the waistline.

This particular gabardine dress is teamed with a white rayon blouse which owes its childish charm to a lace-trimmed collar and puffy ruffled sleeves.

A jumper dress of faille with patch pockets pouched out from a set-in waistband, is ensembled with a long-sleeved tailored blouse of white cotton.

ATOM SMASHER JOINS WAR ON CANCER—Doctors and scientists are anxiously awaiting results of the first use of a new 22,000,000-volt atom smasher to treat two cancer victims. At the University of Illinois College of Medicine, Chicago, laboratory assistant W. D. Davis, left above, uses a plaster cast of a patient's head to find the best position for use of the betatron, designed specifically for medical treatment. At right, a 72-year-old patient, suffering from cancer of the larynx, receives the betatron treatment from Dr. Roger A. Harvey. The patient's head is placed in a small opening of the betatron tube. Within the machine, atomic particles are whirled magnetically until they approach the speed of light. These particles, reflected against a metal plate, "splash" X-rays strong enough to pierce 20 inches of steel. These rays, doctors hope, will destroy or damage the cancer. Results of the treatment cannot be determined immediately.

AmVets to Act On Resolution Asking Merger

Des Moines, Sept. 3—(AP)—A battle over whether the Amvets organization should be merged with the American Veterans Committee (AVC) was shaping today as the 5th national Amvets convention officially opened here.

The Virginia department offered a resolution asking that the convention consider the consolidation of all other world war II veterans organizations with the Amvets.

However, the Colorado department ofthe Amvets notified the convention that it would withdraw if the convention approves the merger.

The AmVet executive committee held a closed meeting, lasting about an hour and a half, to discuss the merger proposal. The group named a committee to study the matter and report to the convention at an undesignated time.

Gil Harrison, of Los Angeles, national chairman of the AVC, met briefly with the committee at the beginning of the closed sesison.

The resolutions committee announced it already has received more than 80 proposed resolutions. The committee will report to the convention tomorrow. The convention wil close Monday following an address at the state fairgrounds by President Truman.

Jet Plane's Secret Test Ends in Crash

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 3—(AP)—A jet plane on a secret test flight dug a crater 10 feet deep as it crashed and exploded in a plowed field near here yesterday afternoon.

The pilot, Lief W. Larsen, 31, of nearby Elma, was killed. The accident happened in suburban Amherst about 15 minutes after he took off from the Niagara Falls airport.

One witness said the plane, identified as a Lockheed F-80 shooting star, zoomed over treetops at a terrific speed, then "just dipped right into the ground and blew up."

Wreckage was strewn over a 500-yard area.

Larsen had planned to leave his job with the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, Inc., next week to resume studies at Princeton university. He was a graduate of Deadwood, S. D., high school and attended South Dakota School of Mines.

"GO EASY ON THE BUTTER, KIDS . . ."—The cow molded from butter is a yearly feature of the Ohio State Fair in Columbus. But, this year bossie had a calf who stole the show. The 600-pound work of butter art has been an annual creation for 26 years of J. E. Wallace of De Land, Fla. If all the butter patties that went into the making of the exhibit were placed end to end, where would that leave bossie and her calf?

Youth Is Trapped 6 Hours in Landslide; Saved Unhurt

Elkhart, Ind., Sept. 3—(AP)—Friends, rescue workers and welders battled an underground sandslide almost six hours last night to get a 17-year-old Chicago schoolboy out of a well!

When the desperate battle was over, cocky Gene Sanders, apparently unhurt by being almost completely buried, wanted to take a bus back to Chicago, but he was held overnight in Elkhart general hospital.

The sand poured in over Sanders just as he and a friend, Gust Peterson, had finished digging a well 20 feet deep beside Peterson's farmhouse near Bristol, nine miles east of here.

Peterson, who had just started up a ladder, frantically scratched sand away from the boy's face. but more sand kept sliding in.

When Fire Chief John Wiliams of Elkhart arrived with an ambulance and rescue crew, he found Peteron bending his own body over the boy's face to keep the sand away.

"Get out of there, or we'll have two to bring up," Williams ordered.

Used Air Mask

Fire Capt. Jack Landon of the Elkhart ambulance crew then fitted an air mask on the boy's face.

Charles Miller, plant superintendent of the Elkhart Bridge And Iron Co., was called by police radio. He decided a sheet steel tube should be lowered into the well to block off any more sandslides.

Instructions for making a tube 42 inches in diameter and 20 feet long were radioed to the Elkhart plant.

An hour and a half later, Miller was back on the Peterson farm but the tube was too big. A crane operator found it wouldn't budge past a spot where the well narrowed.

The tube was pulled out and welders, working on the spot, cut out a strip 10 inches wide. then rewelded the tube.

This time the tube fit, and rescue workers began scooping out the sand around Sanders a bucketful at a time.

"It's No Use"

Through the long hours, Sanders had been cramped in a sitting position. At first he told rescuers, "It's no use."

Later, he complained of feeling cold.

When it became apparent that he would get out all right, his spirits brightened, and his conversation took on the colorful characteristics of the Chicago south side.

When at last he was hoisted out of the well in a rescue harness, he bowed to news photographers and said:

"This'll cost you five bucks."

Doctors could only find minor bruises. They said he spent a restful night.

'Grasps Umpire by Throat'; Manager Martin Suspended

Miami, Fla., Sept. 2—(AP)—The Miami Sun Sox will finish out the Florida International league season minus the services of Manager John Leonard (Pepper) Martin.

Martin was suspended yesterday for the balance of the season and fined $100 for "choking an umpire" in Havana last Friday, League President Phil O'Connell announced.

* * *

Testimony showed an argument started over a close decision by Base Umpire W. E. Williams, O'Connell said. August Rosa, Miami infielder, was ordered to leave the game but refused. Infielder Bob Tripp took up the argument, kicked dirt on home plate and on Umpire Clem W. Camia.

* * *

Martin was notified to get his team on the field and resume play but he refused and the umpires forfeited the game to Havana.

"Manager Martin then went immediately to Umpire Camia," O'Connell said in his report, "and grasped him with both hands around the throat and forcibly choked him until he was pulled off by police officers."

Martin, former member of the St. Louis Cardinals, was serving his first season as manager of the Miami team. The Sun Sox are in second place.

Ken Heintzelman, star Phillie southpaw, won his first big league start hurling a six-hitter for Pittsburgh in 1937.

COUGHLIN'S CORNER

In the line Spurlin has Dick Grams, Bob Wilson, Ken Reuter, Melvin Brogan and John Duffy as veterans with experience . . . Thirty-three candidates are seeking berths on the Amboy eleven with perhaps 10 more expected after the school begins . . . Bill Laschmett, who assists Spurlin with the drills, is in Winchester, his home town where is wife is reportedly seriously ill following surgery. Of course Amboy's big loss will come in the offense where Ronnie Ellis has left a big hole . . . Ellis, incidentally, is definitely, but definitely, scheduled for the University of Illinois . . . The DeKalb offer was mighty good, but the blonde Amboy lad chose the larger school.

Dade Trimmed, So Is Charity, At Chicago Show

Chicago, Sept. 3—(AP)—Charity and former bantamweight champion Harold Dade both took a beating in the "Carnival of Champions" at Chicago Stadium last night.

Sandy Saddler, New York's former featherweight champion, gave Dade a rough going-over for a one-sided victory in their 10-rounder which was the chief item of business as five world champions mixed in as many exhibition bouts.

The show, billed as a benefit for Negro charities, attracted only 7,236 patrons, who paid a gate of $21,872. That was less than half the $46,000 the sponsors needed to make a profit.

Retired Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis refereed the four-round exhibition between Ezzard Charles, N.B.A., heavyweight title-holder, and Lumbering Joe Modzelle, New Kensington, Pa., which was little more than exercise for the Cincinnati scrapper.

SHIRLEY MAY AND U. S. OLYMPIC CHAMP—Shirley May France was in elite company for a practice swim at Dover, England. With her is Brenda Hesler, U. S. Don Newcombe Pitches 30 Scoreless Innings; Hangs 8-0 Whitewash on Giants

(By The Associated Press)

The baseball world laughed when Branch Rickey hung a $500,000 price tag on Don Newcombe before the big Negro righthander ever donned a major league uniform.

Laughter turned to snickers when the head man of the Dodgers "slashed" the price to $300 000 this spring. Today they're not even smiling, just wishing that they owned Fort Knox and its gold.

Newcombe is the "solid" member of an otherwise shaky Brooklyn pitching staff.

Since he joined the Dodgers in mid May Newcombe has displayed the wares that brought fame and fortune to such former Dodger mound stars as Dazzy Vance, Van Mungo and Whit Wyatt.

Like his illustrious predecessors Newcombe can fog the ball past the batters, daring them to try and hit it.

The husky Negro hasn't any trick pitches, no sliders, screwballs or junk. Just a hopping fast ball, sharp breaking curve and a change of pace

* * *

Newcombe looked like a million dollars last night as he pitched the Dodgers to an 8-0 five-hit triumph over the New York Giants in the Polo Grounds.

The victory was his third straight shutout and his 14th of the season against six defeats. The triumph also moved the second place Dodgers to within a game and a half of the idle front-running St. Louis Cardinals.

Newcombe now has pitched 30 consecutive scoreless innings. He previously blanked the Cards and Pittsburgh and held Boston scoreless in the last three innings of a game.

* * *

"Newk" struck out seven Giants to run his whiff total to 119 and tie Boston's Warren Spahn for the league-leaders in this department.

Besides his brilliant pitching Newcombe scored twice and banged out two of Brooklyn's 12 hits, a double and single.

* * *

The defeat dumped the Giants out of fourth into fifth place, the Philadelphia Phillies taking over fourth as a result of their 6-3 victory over the Boston Braves. The Phils won the game in the eighth inning, scoring three runs to snap a 3-3 tie. Willie Jones singled across two of the runs.

* * *

Meanwhile, the Boston Red Sox made hay in the American league pennant chase, crushing the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-4 under the lights in Boston The victory cut the New York Yankees' lead over the runner-up Sox to two and one-half games The Yanks were idle.

Virgil Trucks pitched the Detroit Tigers to an 8-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox in the major's lone day game. Trucks yielded ten singles but kept them well scattered to gain his 16th victory

George Kell and Vic Wertz drove home three runs each to lead Detroit's ten hit attack that included four doubles and a triple.

Besides the Yanks and Cards, the Cleveland Indians, St Louis Browns, Washington Senators, Pittsburgh Pirates, Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs were idle.

American League umpire Bill Summers, a former boxer, began umpiring in 1921 in the Eastern League.

As in the past two seasons, Syracuse will play its home basketball games in the New York State Fair Coliseum.

Three of Gene Hermanski's 15 home runs for the Dodgers in 1948 came in one game last August.

'Won't Quit' Says Boss of Chicago Club

Chicago, Sept. 3—(AP)—There is no doubt who is big boss of the Chicago Sox Comiskey clan. It's 23-year-old Charles Comiskey, club vice-president, who publicly has announced that fact.

However, there is considerable doubt whether Jack Onslow, the 59-year-old Pale Hose "freshman" manager, will be field boss of the Pale Hose next season. But Onslow won't quit and a nifty rhubarb is on.

Onslow tried to work a squeeze play on the subject this week. He invited all the feminine members of the Comiskey family and the club's legal advisor to a dinner-meeting to discuss his 1950 status.

* * *

The dinner never developed. But a crisp speech by young Comiskey did. Taking cognizance that Onslow did not invite him or General Manager Frank Lane with whom old Jack has been feuding season-long to the dinner, Comiskey summoned reporters and announced:

(a) He is completely satisfied with Lane's work as general manager.

(b) He believes Onslow has performed to "the best of his ability" as field manager. (The Sox, finished in last place in 1948, are in sixth place).

(c) He has an "open mind" regarding Onslow's retention for the remainder of his two-year contract, and,

(d) Some of the criticism leveled at Lane (considerable coming from Onslow) should have been directed at him (Comiskey) instead.

* * *

He rounded out the speech by pointing out that Onslow made a mistake seeking to confer with his mother, Mrs. Grace Comiskey, listed as club president; Dorothy Comiskey Rigney, treasurer; Assistant Secretary Gracie Lou Comiskey, and Attorney Tom Sheehan. Charles declared;

* * *

"When I took office last September, Mother told me I was to run the club. I hired Frank Lane as I hired Jack Onslow. I'll continue to do the hiring and firing. If Onslow wanted to know his status, he was approaching the wrong member of the Comiskey family. I am the boss."

* * *

But Onslow was not mollified. Yesterday he said in his most rounded tones: "I got a contract that runs to Jan. 1, 1950, and I'm not going to quit. If they want to pay me for going fishing in New Hampshire next year it will be all right with me."

Austin, Tex., Wins National VFW Title

Austin, Tex., Sept. 3—(AP) — Austin turned in its sixth straight shutout victory of the 1949 National VFW softball tournament here last night to take the title from Ft. Madison, Iowa, 4-0.

Lefty Kreig of Austin's VFW Post 8787 turned loose only one hit for his third straight win of the meet

Iowa's Paul Reberry was trying for his fifth victory in six pitched games.

Syracuse University's cross-country team is unbeaten since 1946 and Coach Bob Grieve's forces have won 12 straight dual meets

Turnesa Beaten; Unknowns Clash in Amateur Golf Finals

Rochester, N. Y., Sept 3—(AP) — A Texas rancher who keeps pinching himself to find out if it's true and a determined young Oklahoman clashed today in the "100-1 shot" finals of the National Amateur Golf tournament

Rufus King, a jolly cow and oil man from Wichita Falls, Tex and Charlie Coe, 135-pound buggy whip from Oklahoma City were to play 36 holes or less over Oak Hill's wooded acres to decide a successor to Willie Turnesa They tee off at 7 30 a m (CST) and 12 p m

* * *

"Gosh, I can hardly believe it, King exclaimed after he had eliminated Turnesa, 2 and 1, yesterday in a fiercely waged 36-hole semifinal.

The 33-year-old Texan, who failed to qualify in his own state championship last summer, was the darkest of dark horses. He shot his way through a bracket that included both of last year's finalists, Turnesa and Ray Billows, and Great Britain's best amateur in champion Max McCready and Ronnie White

King's surprise at his lofty station was not shared by his finalist opponent Coe blew out William C Campbell, the Huntington W Va law maker with cold dispatch, just as if it was part of the script The score was a one-sided 8 and 7.

* * *

A grim young man once he gets a golf stick in his hand, Coe has had his eyes on this one since he was eliminated by Billows in the semi-finalist last year at Memphis.

At 25, he is regarded as one of the nation's outstanding young shotmakers. The links followers have known all along he as good—they just didn't know when he would arrive.

The finals today present a contrast in personalities. King is loose and relaxed as an old dish rag. To him golf is fun. Coe is a cold, deliberate player who studies every shot and seldom says a word in the course of a match.
